

Rating Action: Moody's Ratings downgrades 15 federal lease ratings to Ba1 and places them and 7 other federal lease ratings under review for possible downgrade

29 Sep 2026

New York, September 29, 2026 -- Moody's Ratings (Moody's) has downgraded 15 federal lease ratings to Ba1 and placed them under review for possible downgrade and placed seven other federal lease ratings under review for possible downgrade. This includes 19 ratings on federal lease revenue bonds with renewal and refinancing risk and 3 ratings on federal lease revenue bonds without renewal risk. The review affects approximately $2.4 billion of rated debt.

The actions follow recent federal lease non-renewals, partial renewals and downsizing that reflect evolving federal lease priorities, with facility essentiality not always a primary consideration in tenants' federal lease management and lease renewal decisions. The downgrades reflect our opinion that the 15 downgraded federal leases with renewal and refinancing risk now have a lower likelihood of renewal, and reflect credit profiles that are below investment grade. Therefore, we downgraded any renewal risk federal leases with investment grade ratings to Ba1.

Please click on this https://ratings.moody.com/documents/PBM_PBM909930690 for the List of Affected Credit Ratings. This list is an integral part of this Press Release and identifies each affected issuer. The federal lease revenue bonds without renewal risk are the Port of Newport (OR) (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Project), International Falls Economic Development Authority (Voyageurs National Park Facility Project), and MVP Federal Leasing, LLC (US District Court of Guam). The other 19 names on this list have renewal risk.

RATINGS RATIONALE

Please click on this link https://ratings.moody.com/documents/PBM_PBM909930690 for the List of Affected Credit Ratings. This list is an integral part of this Press Release and provides, for each of the credit ratings covered, Moody's disclosures on the following items:

- State of Obligor

The ratings on 19 of the affected federal lease revenue bonds face renewal and refinancing risk because the underlying lease is scheduled to expire before the debt is fully repaid. In most cases, repayment depends on the lease being renewed with similar or more favorable terms. The downgrades and our reviews for possible downgrade on these ratings reflect rapidly reduced predictability in federal lease renewal decisions, as outcomes are increasingly diverging from what a property's essentiality might suggest. It also incorporates a lack of timely, publicly available information from the federal government regarding their asset-specific real estate plans, particularly for leases that are expiring within the next two years.

In our review, we will consider our assessment of each issuer's likelihood of renewal and early termination risk, incorporating: i) less predictable federal real estate policies; ii) slower lease administration that increases the risk that non-renewal or early termination notice will come with little advance warning; and iii) the more limited reuse and refinancing options available to lessors in an environment of protracted lease negotiations and higher interest rates. To make this assessment, we will seek federal statements of intent regarding specific projects and leases, evidence of stable facility condition and cooperative lessee/lessor relationships, and lessor refinancing and contingency plans in the event of lease non-renewal. We will assess these factors relative to the proximity to the lease termination date.

The ratings on three of the affected federal lease revenue bonds (listed above) do not face renewal risk but may be subject to increased early termination risk as allowed under terms of the lease. The review for possible downgrade on these bonds reflects rapidly reduced predictability in federal real estate and lease management decisions, as outcomes are increasingly diverging from what a property's essentiality would suggest. It also incorporates the lack of timely, publicly available information regarding asset-specific real estate plans.

In our review, we will consider our assessment of project essentiality, incorporating the risk that the federal government may be less willing to resolve building management disagreements and more willing to declare the lease in default and terminate early. To make this assessment, we will seek federal statements of intent regarding specific projects and leases and evidence of stable facility condition and cooperative lessee/lessor relationships.

Possible review outcomes include confirmation of the existing ratings, downgrade potentially by multiple notches, or withdrawal of the rating due to lack of sufficient information.

FACTORS THAT COULD LEAD TO AN UPGRADE OF THE RATINGS

Given the review for downgrade, it is unlikely that ratings will be upgraded. The factors that could lead to a rating confirmation include:

- Adequate protection from renewal risk or early termination risk including: evidence of cooperative lessor/lessee relationships; strong asset quality and maintenance; adequate confirmation of continued federal commitment in the leased facility; clear contingency planning from lessors considering the remaining length of the lease

FACTORS THAT COULD LEAD TO A DOWNGRADE OF THE RATINGS

- Inadequate protection from renewal risk or early termination risk including: weakening lessor/lessee relationships; diminished asset quality and maintenance; inadequate confirmation of continued federal commitment in the leased facility; insufficient contingency planning from lessors considering the remaining length of the lease
